

GREENWICH PEOPLE

The Greenwich Lions donated $4,000 to the Greenwich Library's large print books. The move continues a tradition that dates to the 1960s, when the organization founded the Hardy Finch Large Print Library. The inventory now stands at slightly over 4,600 books. They are a large part of the book van service to town senior residences and nursing homes. The collection includes contemporary and classical fiction and non-fiction works. Library Director Mario M. Gonzales, left, and Greenwich Lions Club President Rick Brooks stand near the new offerings.
